Steve will be conducting this workshop via Zoom from his home near Denver, Colorado. We plan to meet together in a room at the Dublin library so that we can benefit from each other's experiences and questions. (However, if you wish to participate via Zoom from your home, we can arrange that.) We expect to be able to provide more-or-less private one-on-one critiques with Steve. Because we have the room reserved for only a limited time, we encourage people to bring a sack lunch, but this is not mandatory. There are several nice restaurants in the area should you like to take a break. If you have any questions, please contact Mitch Masters.

Steve Griggs is a master of loose watercolor painting, as you can see on his website at <https://stevegriggswatercolor.com/>. His paintings are bold and often colorful, exemplifying his desire to produce distinctive works that speak to viewers on a deep level and stir their emotions. If this is also an aim of your own work, then this workshop should be well worth your time.
